Dear Folks,

Having written you an airmail yesterday afternoon, I'll try a V-mail today, so you will be sure to hear from me as soon as possible.

I can say I am somewhere in the Marianas - also that we stopped in Honolulu on the way down - so that was the "large town" I mentioned. However, at the time we couldn't say where we were, that was our first stop. Our second was "somewhere in the Marshalls" but that's all I can say. However, it was in the news not so long ago and there were still a few signs of the fighting to be seen.

The food here is wonderful - last night we had steak, rice, lima beans, canned tomatoes, coffee, and apple pie - and breakfast was very good this morning, too, consisting of pancakes, bacon, oatmeal, jam or syrup, and coffee. It costs the officers 75¢ a day flat, which is certainly
