Scope and Content Note

The William M. Stokes, Jr. Papers is divided into four separate series. The collection includes papers from the World War II period; papers regarding the creation of the George C. Marshall Research Foundation; miscellaneous correspondence; and printed materials. The entire collection was donated by William M. Stokes, Jr., of Lynchburg, Virginia, in April, 1977.

The papers from the World War II period (1942-1945) contains official files, field notes, miscellaneous writings, maps, and clippings. The official files contain important items concerning various phases of Stokes' wartime activities. There are handwritten pages documenting Stokes' training at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and the arrival of the 2nd Battalion at Newport News, Virginia, for embarkation overseas on October 15, 1942 and subsequent landings at Yellow Beach and Safi, French Morocco. There is an order placing Stokes in command of the 67th Armored Regiment on October 8, 1942; orders and a hand drawn map of Yellow Beach instructing the men of the U.S.S. Calvert to land; documentation of the battle near Safi, the capturing of French prisoners, and Stokes' distinguished service at Safi and Mazagon. Road logs for French Morocco are also included.

From the campaign on Sicily there are printed field notes on the 67th Armored Regiment's arrival on July 11, 1943, written by Companies "G," "H," and "I." There are reports on the Sicilian Operation by officers Philips Bixby and Clifton Roe; and notes from the Sicilian campaign of June 26-July 25, 1943, which began with the battle against the Herman Goering Division on the beaches of Sicily.

The collection contains documents and papers pertaining to the 67th Armored Division's stay in England in 1944; its landing in Normandy on June 11, 1944; lists of casualties for both sides; a hand drawn map of the portion of France; accounts of Task Force "Stokes," and the Lanklaer-Stockheim campaign in Belgium in September 1944.

There are eight small handwritten notebooks Stokes kept in the field during his military service in North Africa and Europe. They contain notes on such matters as maneuvers and personnel. Along with the notebooks are notes made by Stokes at a later date to help clarify the contents.

Other assorted papers include: memos on recommendations for decorations; auditing notices; programs; a roster of officers of the 67th Armored Regiment; the order notifying Stokes that he is to receive the Croix de Guerre with palm, signed by General de Gualle; award of the Silver Star; award of the Purple Heart; a citation signed by Charles, Prince of Belgium, awarding the 2nd Armored Division the 1940 fourragere (the first time a foreign unit has ever been so honored); and a letter of discharge signed by George C. Marshall.

The papers regarding the formation of the George C. Marshall Research Foundation in Lexington (1951-1956) includes correspondence, minutes, and reports. There are two letters signed by Harry Truman, dated January 13 and January 19, 1953, to John C. Hagan, Jr., concerning the library. A letter is included from Harry F. Byrd to John C. Hagan, Jr., dated February 16, 1953. Of special note is a letter to Hagan from General George C. Marshall, dated December 22, 1954, regarding the Marshall Foundation.

The miscellaneous correspondence (1955-1968) contains letters dealing primarily with two main topics. One set of correspondence is between Stokes and Ralph E. Pearson, Colonel in the U.S. Army, concerning Pearson's book, Enroute to the Redoubt. Included is a sample table of contents. The second set is a three-way correspondence between Stokes, Adjutant-General Kenneth Wickham, and a D. Grafer of Germany, concerning the identity of the American Commander of the 66th Armored Regiment, 2nd Armored Division.

The collection's printed materials includes several books, maps of Europe (specifically London), newspapers and clippings, magazines and pamphlets, programs and foreign currency, all dealing with the World War II period. A portion of these materials have been transferred to the library.

The collection is organized into one box of 28 folders.
